A Book for the Fields and Woods.

DERBY & MILLER have published another and more beautiful edition of SUMMER-NELD, by Day Kellogs Lee, and every body going into the Country at this season, of course will carry it with him, to enjoy among the Fields and Woods. One of the Boston Magazines says of "Summerfield."

'The is a remarkable book—remarkable for the effectual bringing to the very senses of the most the sweet scented fields and the cool air of the liditop and the shady woods. The 'Captive' is decother most perfect of pruse poems we have ever met. Any pantage of the most perfect of pruse poems we have ever met. Any pantage of the most perfect of pruse poems we have ever met. Any pantage of the most and earnestnesse of feeling, and singularly free frum affectation and pretense."

"The scene is ind amid the beautiful lakes of Centra New York. It is not of the most charmag stories we have for Granca Aguillar and Carrel Bell."

"The scene are natural, the characters life like, and the narrative registe with passages of the profoundent pathon, and incidents of almost guardial interest."

"A We do of Castle Building' in 'Summerfield,' is use of the most the Mallar of the Bell."

"A We do of Castle Building' in 'Summerfield,' is use of the most them with the business pathon, and incidents of the when we first read some of Couper's best novels."

(Backport Course."

"We have edjoyed somewhing of the pleasure, in reading it, that we did when we first read some of Couper's best novels."

(Albany Journal, "Argue," and in second the caster them is a rich disable of wit."

"There is a great deal of life and nature in the story, and in some of the scenes there is a rich display of wit."
